GUEST EDITORIAL

A "Pushbutton" God Seems Common Idea

According to the dictionary, God is the "Supreme Being." If this is our understanding of the term, we wonder who God is today. One would suppose that His will and wishes would be directive in our lives. If everything is His including ourselves, and if He is supreme in wisdom, intelligence, power and favour, then we ought to have at least a little interest in knowing to Him, seeking His favour and paying our respects to Him.

We need to claim that we are Christians living in a Christian country and influenced by a Christian culture. But when we visit our cities and observe the actions of people about us, when we turn our eyes to the news, when we hear the radio, we wonder whether we can honestly lay claim to this title.

The word "Christian" apparently comes from Acts 11:26. And it is true, then the word "disciple" of Christ would pretty well cover the matter of just who is a Christian. A disciple is a follower of a certain person or doctrine. If we are Christ's disciples, then of course we will have to follow Him, because what He says and does is right.

Christ tells us quite plainly what our duty was as far as God is concerned in Matthew 22:37. He wants to be His disciples here is where we can start. God must be supreme. Christ gives even further. He claims the title of God for Himself. He claims He is to be supreme in Matthew 23:10. He implies it also when He tells how we can be His disciples in John 8:12-13. And even His enemies supported His claim and understood it as we see from their own words in John 10:33-34. From these citations we believe that a person claiming to be a "Christian" has some duties to fulfil if he wants to lay claim to this title. Or are we too strict?

As we look around and check up on ourselves do we accept Christ as our Master? Do we give a care what He says or thinks or wants? Do we know what He says? Do we listen to Him? Do we love Him? Do we worship Him? In other words is He "supreme" in our lives and thoughts?

Or is someone or something else running that place in our lives? Just what might be in competition for this "supreme" position in our lives? Look around and listen. Do we accept the Bible as the "Word of truth" or does something else rate higher in our esteem as "truth" as directive in our thinking and our behaviour? Do we ask with Paul (on the way to Damascus, Acts 9:6), "Lord, what wilt thou have me to do?" Or do we more often hear this remark, "I won't touch that!" Or isn't it often "I hate that!" Do we seek the favor of God, or do we pretty well ignore Him in our work-a-day life? Do we ever pray to Him, seeking His help or His direction? Or do we spend our time and energies satisfying our own desires and whims? Do we worship Him or do we worship ourselves?

We would just like to venture the suggestion that, judging from the most frequent remarks and actions we observe, that it seems as though our thinking is geared to satisfying Man rather than God. Man seems to be the first and then comes God. And the usual reference to God implies that He had better stand around so if we need Him. He is the available. A sort of "pushbutton" God, as it were. And if He doesn't jump to our commands well we will call Him. If He says something that doesn't seem to match what we think, then He must be wrong. If He tells us something we don't do, and it doesn't suit us, we start to argue that it isn't as unreasonable as we certainly can't be expected to do that. No other all who is God is He God or is Man's Supreme?

We have a suspicion that if we set ourselves up as "supreme" and carry on pretty much as we deem fit, and when we have made a mess of things by our own selfish ways, well we wonder whether we have a right to expect that He will jump right in and repair us from our own fault. And if He doesn't jump in, then well then, "There is no God, if there was a God He wouldn't let such things go on, etc." If then, we ignore God and set ourselves up as "supreme," why blame God for our "Mistakes"? As you saw, so you treat. Or does it work out otherwise in "practice"?

And so we wonder just who is God today? Just who is supreme? Who is supposed to give the orders, and who is supposed to obey? Or have we no business knowing this matter in the first place? Are we out of order? Are we out of touch of date?

In case you would be interested in pursuing this matter further, and you really are wondering just what God has in mind for you, may we humbly suggest that you balance yourself to the extent of looking in the so-called "Good Book" and see what God claims to say in John 3:16 and John 20:31, and if you are interested in what you ought to do as a result of that look, perhaps the answer of Paul to the question above "What wilt thou have me to do?" as he himself learned to express it in 1 Corinthians 2:2, or as St. Peter shares his personal answer in 1 Peter 2:9 would give us all a clue. Anyway it is worth the effort to look it up, and thus show "Who God is" in your life at least. — Lynn E. Jones, Pastor, First Lutheran Church, Kelowna.

What a Month!

It is getting so that soon every date on the calendar will be a day set aside to honor something or other. As it stands now, there is not a month, a week, and hardly a day of the year that isn't set aside for some worthy purpose.

Just take October, for instance. It's Be Kind to Customers Month, Let's Go Hunting Month, Restaurant Month, Biscuit-Muffin Month and Science Youth Month.

But that is not all for October. There is Lath and Plaster week, Fire Prevention Week, Employ the Handicapped Week, Pass the Laugh Week, Save the Horse Week, Pharmacy

Week, Apple Week, Business Women's Week, Y-Teen Roll Call Week, National Newspaper Week, Fan Club Week, United Nations Week, Forest Products Week, Downtown Week, Bible Week, Whale Watching Week, Popcorn Week, Wine Week, Catholic Youth Week, Cleaner Air Week, Pretzel Week, Thrift Week, Gifted Child Week, and Honey Week. And, we think, Cheese Week.

Finally, of course, October has had Halloween, Thanksgiving Day in Canada and Columbus Day in the United States.

It's an exhausting month, especially if you're a newspaper editor.

Quebec Press Takes Look At Variety Of Current Topics

This is a selection of editorials on current topics, translated from the French-language press of Canada.

Quebec Le Soleil—The announcement of a new electoral law to study, especially, the press has been well received by the writers of the Le Soleil. It will be by the population as well. But one would wonder whether and how such a law would be applied. Will they really respect the rights of the press of electoral expenses in practice?

The principle of a control of electoral expenses is an old one. It has been known for many years. It stems from the fact that the voice of the people must be heard as freely as possible in the choice of public representatives. For this, the people must be well informed about the policies of candidates and about the way in which they will spend the money they will receive if elected.

But the law is not the same in all countries. In Canada, it is different. It is more complex. It is more difficult to apply. It is more difficult to understand. It is more difficult to control. It is more difficult to enforce. It is more difficult to make it work.

Flood Of Liquid Won't Go Away

By DR. JOSEPH G. MOLNER

Many people have a problem of liquid retention in the body. It is not a new problem, but it is a common one. When it comes and goes periodically, it is called cyclic edema. It is a problem to women.

But, rather than agreeing that this is a problem, some people will say that it is not a problem. They will say that it is a normal part of life. They will say that it is a sign of health.

Most women have an increase in water retention just before the menstrual period, with an increase in weight of from one to two pounds. The weight is promptly lost through release of the water when the period starts.

With some women the problem can be more severe than that. It can be a chronic problem. It can be a problem that is not related to the menstrual period.

One to catch up with has noted that some women have had a severe step infarct in earlier in life, perhaps altering the capillaries, or very small blood vessels, permitting more fluid to seep into the tissues.

Because hormone activity is closely related to the psychological or emotional state, attention to tensions can be helpful. Indeed, in some cases depressed emotional problems have been found, and efforts to cure them have been reflected in less edema.

Keeping salt in the diet at a minimum is an obvious measure, because the more salt in the body, the more water retained.

Diuretics (drugs to release excess fluid) can be helpful when used periodically. Sometimes they are sufficient to keep the patient adequately comfortable. In severe cases, they cannot be expected to do it all, and weight reduction, low-salt diet, measures to control emotional tension and other steps may be required. Low thyroid activity also tends to cause some degree of fluid retention.

The writer suggests an "angioneurotic edema," and possibly an allergic disorder of some kind.

In most of the cyclic edema cases of the sort we are discussing, there is no kidney, liver or heart disease, although there can be continuing and serious edema from these causes.

While cyclic edema cannot be neatly pigeon-holed as coming from any single cause, fortunately severe cases of it are not common.

But, rather than agreeing that this is a problem, some people will say that it is not a problem. They will say that it is a normal part of life. They will say that it is a sign of health.

Most women have an increase in water retention just before the menstrual period, with an increase in weight of from one to two pounds. The weight is promptly lost through release of the water when the period starts.

With some women the problem can be more severe than that. It can be a chronic problem. It can be a problem that is not related to the menstrual period.

One to catch up with has noted that some women have had a severe step infarct in earlier in life, perhaps altering the capillaries, or very small blood vessels, permitting more fluid to seep into the tissues.

Because hormone activity is closely related to the psychological or emotional state, attention to tensions can be helpful. Indeed, in some cases depressed emotional problems have been found, and efforts to cure them have been reflected in less edema.

Keeping salt in the diet at a minimum is an obvious measure, because the more salt in the body, the more water retained.

Diuretics (drugs to release excess fluid) can be helpful when used periodically. Sometimes they are sufficient to keep the patient adequately comfortable. In severe cases, they cannot be expected to do it all, and weight reduction, low-salt diet, measures to control emotional tension and other steps may be required. Low thyroid activity also tends to cause some degree of fluid retention.

The writer suggests an "angioneurotic edema," and possibly an allergic disorder of some kind.

In most of the cyclic edema cases of the sort we are discussing, there is no kidney, liver or heart disease, although there can be continuing and serious edema from these causes.

While cyclic edema cannot be neatly pigeon-holed as coming from any single cause, fortunately severe cases of it are not common.

Dear Dr. Molner: Can X-rays, given by a dentist every six months, be dangerous? Many dentists X-ray before they fix teeth. I am sure many mothers are interested in this. — A.W.

With modern equipment and in skilled hands, I see no reason for concern. The exposure is brief and, of course, applied only to the teeth and gums.

BIBLE BRIEF

"And a highway shall be there, and it shall be called the way of holiness; the unclean shall not pass over it, but the redeemed shall walk there." Isaiah 55: 8, 9.

The home of the soul is prepared for those who have lived separated lives. Salvation calls for an individual sacrifice, and a personal separation. If you are in Christ, he is a new creature, old things are far away, behold all things are becoming new.

MAY CROSSBREED

The Bunters' sprout, a cousin of kale, cauliflower, broccoli, collards and cabbage, will cross-pollinate freely with any of these vegetables.

WAX USE

About 80 per cent of the 1,400,000,000 pounds of wax produced annually in the U.S. goes into packaging and waxed paper products.

SULLEN IS THE THING TO WATCH

This Greek Has Word For It...

ATHENS (CP) — The Greek, says a Greek, is happy 15 per cent of the time, angry 15 per cent of the time and sullen five per cent of the time.

"And it's when he's sullen that you've got to watch out." This rule of thumb, volunteered by a young doctor working in London and vacationing in his homeland, is sound advice.

The average tourist often is deceived and overwhelmed by the sudden change of the Greek temper in full force. Really quite harmless — and tends to fall victim to Greek indifference which in its quiet way can be far more perilous.

A Greek in a temper tantrum gives a magnificent performance. He plays it for every thing it's worth, flailing the air with his arms, his voice booming, eyes bulging, the veins of his neck and temples straining.

It's a sort of tourist attraction, one of the things every visitor must see and just about as easy to miss as the Acropolis.

But the Greeks themselves are only interested if they happen to be participants. Otherwise they are completely indifferent.

In a palatial Athens bank, a gathering spot for foreigners changing currency, this reporter witnessed a spectacular display of verbal fireworks when two distinguished-looking dilettantes looked horns over a banking matter.

It lasted five minutes, their voices soaring to the tops of the great Corinthian columns supporting the massive marble ceiling. The combatants were oblivious to foreign spectators who shifted about uneasily, giggled nervously behind their hands, or stared in open admiration.

Finally, Greek secretaries working nearby were not only undisturbed by the clash but appeared to be unaware of it. No one ever seems to win an argument in Greece. One of the parties simply wanders off the floor and walks off

Mr. W. J. Nicholson,
General Manager,
Kelowna Daily Courier

Dear Mr. Nicholson:

My recent trip to Paris prompts me to write you to thank you for the trip. As you probably know, the trip was organized by the Automobile Association of Canada Ltd. for extraordinary sales achievement. The company set a sales quota for a specified month of time. I was able to achieve the quota in half the time allotted and with these things were responsible for my success.

First, of course, is the fact that Renault is a good automobile, gaining in popularity by leaps and bounds. Secondly, aggressive selling, good dealing, and hard work, on my part. Last, but by no means least, consistent advertising in the Daily Courier, expertly written by your representative, John Stefanyshin.

Up until a year or so ago, my advertising was spread on a bit of this basic in various media. The results were coming in on the small bit and was back. It was then that John came to me with a full year's plan of advertising. With the plan he proposed, I knew exactly how much money I would be spending every day of every month.

He convinced me that the Courier with its circulation of over 6,300 copies daily and over 18,000 readers, would best get my message to the public. I'm glad he did! He allotted 80% of the total budget to the Courier, published a sales message every day and the business has grown quite beyond expectation. As far as I'm concerned, there is no better way to build sales and business than through regular advertising in the Daily newspaper .... and I've got a trip to Paris to back up my conviction. C'est si Bon.

Yours truly,

Garry Kovacs

The letter above is proof of the power of Newspaper advertising. As always, the combination of a good reputation and consistent newspaper advertising is a tough team to beat! Today, amid the claims of other forms of advertising, the daily Newspaper alone remains the unquestioned leader.

Is the power of Daily Newspaper Advertising at work for Your Business?

OTTAWA (CP) — The main dividing line in NATO must be drawn between France and Norway, a Norwegian minister said today. He said that while Norway is a member of NATO, it is not a member of the Western European Union, which is a separate organization. He said that Norway is a member of NATO because it is a member of the Western European Union, which is a member of NATO.
